Judged and Critiqued by

Kyle Blumenthal

Kyle holds an MFA and an MA in Painting from C.W. Post College. She received her BFA in painting and Art Education from Pratt Institute. She is an Illustrator, a Fine Artist, a Stage Designer and Art Educator and Display Artist.

This exhibit is open to members. There is no theme. All mediums accepted. Submitted work will be showcased in a slideshow format on our website homepage: www.longbeachartleague.com

The show went live on March 1 and runs through April 28. Judging will take place at our April meeting.

On our Website: Members are entitled to show their art on our website for a one time fee of $35.00. Please contact Denise Bory for information about this opportunity

On Our Facebook Page: We are now posting and advertising exhibit slideshows on our facebook page with a link to our website. Art from each exhibit is being rotated weekly with 10 pieces allowed at a time. To date we are getting about 1,700 audience views/interactions per 7 days. It's a great way to promote our art league and our member's work. We urge everyone to go to the Facebook page and to like and share our posts, so that more people see what we are doing and that way, our membership grows and becomes more dynamic.

Here is a list of the art books that Selma Stern recommended at the last LBAL meeting: Creative Composition and Design by Pat Dews, Creative Discoveries in Watermedia by Pat Dews, The Creative Edge by Mary Todd Beam, Celebrate Your Creative Self by Mary Todd Beam and Clear Seeing Place by Brian Rutenberg. Pat Dews and Mary Todd Beam are excellent artists with whom I have studied. These books are very informative and are beautifully illustrated with their artwork. Brian Rutenberg is a wonderful artist, and this book tells how he became an artist and what he is producing artistically at the present time. All are definitely worth reading. Some of them may be available at libraries on Long Island.

Art League of Long Island

The Art League of Long Island is a not-for-profit organization dedicated to broad-based visual arts education, providing a forum and showcase for artists of all ages and ability levels. Since its inception in 1955, the mission has focused on enhancing Long Island's cultural life by promoting the appreciation, practice and enjoyment of the visual arts.

*At this time under the current COVID conditions, they are offering a very limited number of in-person classes in their socially distanced studios, and a host of virtual art classes via Zoom. Phone: 1 631-462-5400 Email: info@artleagueli.net

Our Founder – Leona Post

The Last time that Leona Post was able to attend a meeting at which she was the Honoree. Naomi Diracles and Marilyn Kestin are with her here.

Stay healthy and safe. We look forward to seeing you in April.
